Chaf Sofit	Ch in loch	ך	Caf	C in cat	כּ
Tav	T	ת	Mem Sofit	M	ם
Holem	oh	וּ

Notes:

- 1) There are several letters, often called “doubles” or bagad kafat (בגדכפת) which have different sounds when a Dagesh (dot) is found in the letter.
- 2) The Ch of Chaf (כ) becomes C of Caf(כּ) with the dagesh.
- 3) The V of Veit (ב) becomes the B of Beit (בּ) with the dagesh
- 4) Some like Dalet ד have lost their second sounds, but they still have the dagesh at the beginning of a closed syllable
- 5) In Modern and Sephardic Hebrew, the Tav only has the T sound, but in Ashkenazic Hebrew it has two. You might hear the form without the dagesh (ת) as an S and with (תּ) as a T. We will use only T.
- 6) Some letters Change Shape at the end of the word. These are called Sofit.
- 7) For Mem (מ) the sofit is (ם)
- 8) For Chaf (כ) the sofit is (ך)
- 9) The Holem (וּ) might be a vav with a dot on top. This is a vowel and the V is not pronounced.
